'4-pronged strategy to make India developed'

The minister was partici-pating in the India-Japan pating in the India-Japan Forum discussion anchored by 15th Finance Commission chairman NK Singh. With infrastructure comes investment (second I), she said, adding that empha-sis on investment will promote greater participation of both the public and private sectors.

She explained that the focus will not only be on physical infrastructure such as bridges, roads, ports or airports, but also on creation of ports, but also on creation of digital infrastructure.

"We are looking for both public investment and private investment and retained the necessary environment and ecosystem for attracting investment.

And with global discussions going on, blended finance is also something that we're looking at," she said.

Stating that innovation is the third I, she said, "the gov-ernment has opened up several areas to get out of fossil fuels. We have enough reason to believe that the youth today are giving us solutions that are very good for the frontier technologies that we're talking about, as much as for the legacy issues that persist in India for which we need solutions?

On inclusiveness, the fourth, the minister said the idea is to make sure that every section of India, including the common man, benefits from investments, reforms and assorted government schemes.
